It's "high noon" in the United States. The election is weeks away, and there's much at stake for the country's working people and families. From access to abortion care to paid family and medical leave, the candidates need to discuss real policy solutions to the real problems facing women and families.

The final presidential debate is October 19. Tweet throughout the day using the sample tweets below – or join a tweet storm at noon ET focused on reproductive health and justice – to tell all candidates what matters most to women and families.

New! Activists and organizations are encouraged to use WeTweet.org/moderator to send tweets directly to debate moderator Chris Wallace @FoxNewsSunday.
